Neurologist Dr. Matthew J. Ashley and Neuroscientist Dr. Grace S. Griesbach Join Centre for Neuro Skills

Bakersfield, CA (Aug. 6, 2014) – Centre for Neuro Skills (CNS) announced today that Matthew Ashley, M.D., J.D., and Grace Griesbach, Ph.D., have joined the company.

“We’re honored to have two remarkable professionals whose expertise in neurology and neuroscience is renowned in their respective disciplines,” said Dr. Mark J. Ashley, president and CEO of CNS. “They bring a wealth of knowledge to these new roles, helping us advance the understanding and treatment of brain injury.”

Dr. Matthew Ashley is a visiting assistant clinical professor at the UCLA Department of Neurology. He will remain in this role and partner concurrently with CNS, providing clinical consultation to patients recovering from brain injury. Dr. Ashley earned his medical degree from Southern Illinois University School of Medicine. He also holds a juris doctor degree from Southern Illinois University School of Law.

Dr. Griesbach is the new National Director of Clinical Research and will lead the efforts of the Research Department. She will support CNS neuroscientists and research associates to develop, prepare, and submit grant proposals and manuscripts. Her duties include support of department publications, presentations, research reports, and partnerships with various organizations involved in research and evaluation.

Dr. Griesbach holds a Ph.D. in psychology and behavioral neuroscience with a minor in clinical neuropsychology from the University of Texas at Austin. Dr. Griesbach is also an Adjunct Associate Professor in the Department of Neurosurgery at the David Geffen School of Medicine at UCLA.
